ABOUT...

I've been in education for over fourteen years, working with both students and teachers with the simple goal of doing what's best for students. I enjoy sharing practices and resources that I know will make a difference in classrooms. I understand the paradigm shifts that are currently needed to incorporate best practices and technology on an integrated level.

Professional Development needs to be specific to the user, with much time to practice and with the understanding that expert level is not required to implement something new. There is much to be gained from trying things out with students and being open to being a learner AND a teacher.
